

Foods and Nutrition I

Nutrition for Prevention Research Paper

Using the Internet as a means to research, the student will interpret and evaluate information found to focus on what they see as scientifically based information. The information will be organized into written report 1-2 pages in length. In the research paper, the student will include definitions, causes, symptoms, and prevention methods associated with nutrition.

1. Choose a potential health problem, which is in your family's health history or one that you would like to research. Research the definition of the problem, causes, symptoms, prevention methods and any related important information.
2. Discuss how nutrition can affect the health problem.
3. The paper needs to be 1-2 typed pages, double spaced, font size 12.
4. Research the Internet for information. Consult at least two reliable resources. Cite your work using APA style.

The research paper is worth 100 points. Class time set aside for completion is 3 days. Research the Internet on the first day, copy relevant information and compose and type your paper the next two days.

Teacher Evaluates

	10 points- Excellent	8 points- Good	6 points- Fair	4 points- Unsatisfactory	2 points- Little Effort	0 points- No Effort
There is a clear theme throughout the work, and all sections support that theme.
The work as a whole is organized logically and has a clear main idea.
Main ideas are backed by details that provide adequate support, are accurate, and smoothly integrated.

Foods and Nutrition I

Nutrition for Prevention Research Paper

Several sources of information are used, and source material is skillfully woven into the text.
References are properly presented.
The student's own thinking is clearly evident.
Grammar, usage, punctuation, and capitalization are correct.
The work is very neat and presentable.
It is clear the student thoroughly understands the core concepts relevant to this assignment.
The work accomplishes its purpose and communicates well with the intended audience.

Total Points _____/100
